The 21st Century dawned on a very different presidency than the one created at the end of the 1700s. Constitutional provisions limited the early presidency, although the personalities of the first three — George Washington, John Adams, and Thomas Jefferson — shaped it into a more influential position by the early 1800s. However, throughout the 1800s until the 1930s, Congress was the ...

The Committee on Public Information, or CPI, was established on April 14, 1917, just one week after America's war declaration. As the official information bureau of the United States, the CPI's charge was as complex as it was sweeping: to convince a sometimes wary American public to buy into, and fully participate in, the war effort.
