Because this site is dedicated to free books, there's none of the hassle you get with filtering out paid-for content on Amazon or Google Play Books. We also love the fact that all the site's genres are presented on the homepage, so you don't have to waste time trawling through menus. Unlike the bigger stores, Free-Ebooks.net also lets you sort results by publication date, popularity, or rating, helping you avoid the weaker titles that will inevitably find their way onto open publishing platforms (though a book has to be really quite poor to receive less than four stars).

With North Star releasing his new "Death in the Dark Continent" rule set, we wanted to see if it brought anything new to the table. For our first trial game, Steve and I tried a clash of two European forces: British and French. We went with the basic "Pitched Battle" scenario to be fought over a jungle outpost.

Chris Peers' Death in the Dark Continent are the rules in question and with that in mind I thought I'd share an AAR and a few thoughts that amount to a sort of review of aspects of the rules, which I believe, is to see a new lease of life in a second edition release this year by Northstar Miniatures.

A Grab Bag of Games: Death in the Dark Continent

When I decided to write "Death in the Dark Continent", one of the biggest changes from my previous African set, "In the Heart of Africa", was the switch from singly based figures to larger multi-figure bases, There were several reasons for this: large armies were now easier to move about, and of course differences in troop types and fighting styles could now be incorporated, distinguished by varying numbers of figures of each base.

BASING FIGURES FOR DEATH IN THE DARK CONTINENT" by Chris peers

Death in the Dark Continent or Into Africa The latest edition of Chris Peers excellent rule set covering wargames set in 19th century Africa. As a long time fan of the adventures of Allan Quartermain as well as various periods of African history - typically anything Colonial through to the Great War - having a set of wargames rules that focused on the 'Dark Continent' was always going to be of interest.

One thing I do quite like the idea of is Death in the Dark Continent, although I haven't made up my mind whether to go for 15mm or 28mm scale figures. In 15mm I have plenty of Peter Pig Beja 'Fuzzy Wuzzy' figures and enough Egyptians to have two armies, using the standard 30mm x 60mm bases but with double the number of figures on each one.
